FOREWORD

Remember! Turn back the hands of the clock before the time of our marriages, our travels, our successes, our failures, or serious thoughts of worldly matters entered our minds. Go back to the time when our only real problems were the following day's exams, that miserable spat with the boy friend, and, of course, our honest obsession that nobody really understood us.

Remember our high school years and the half-frightened, half-elated feeling which engulfed us when we enrolled as Sophomores. We were but tiny minnows emptied into the Atlantic Ocean, and the three grim years ahead seemed endless. However, we were growing, and our outlook on life soon changed. Suddenly we were Juniors and sure that Richmond High had been built expressly for us and would remain standing only for as long as we, ourselves, remained. But the pure fantasy of this belief and the true meaning of adulthood were realized as soon as we were Seniors, sophisticated beyond sophistication.

It was during our Senior year that a few of us became members of the Shield Staff and chose to depict the latter part of the year 1954 in our yearbook with a sophisticated motif, as befitted our status in school. Hence, our theme, "Sophisticated Send-off".

We decided that our Shield would be supreme among yearbooks, and supreme it certainly was, in addition to being downright revolutionary! First of all, we changed our method of publishing from engraving to lithography; technical terms which simply meant that our yearbook would have professional-type layouts attractively arranged, instead of pages of pictures piled upon pictures. We were given a free rein concerning makeup, and, unlike the Shield staffs before us, were able to cut the pictures into circles, rectangles, hexagons, and numerous other designs which proved pleasing to the eye.

Our next goal was to give the book a "heart". We did this by placing variously spaced writings, with a definite purpose and meaning, throughout the Shield. This trend, also, was entirely new.

Our Shield was the largest in the history of the school, and also, we hastened to add, the best. The proof that this is so leaps out, we think, from every page of our book!

DEDICATION

Miss Dorothy Madison is more than a teacher to thousands of students who know her. She is a gay and happy friend who has a word of encouragement for everyone she meets. This cheery aspect reflects a genuine streak of contentment in her nature, but it is also a front, covering a finely developed intelligence and great learning. She does not flaunt knowledge; she never appears to be weighted down with thought. Her intelligence is made apparent through her own sterling character and forthright actions.

Every student who came to her for advice was eagerly welcomed; not one was ever turned away. She was sought by those who desperately needed understanding and felt they could trust no one else, as well as by those who had triumphs to report. Every problem was a confidence, and to it she brought the weight of her ethical standards, fine mind, loving heart, and great scholarship. She was able to make each student feel that he had become a better, stronger, and more adult person for having had an encounter with some difficulty. This, after all, was Life. She made us see it as a challenge.

Her own scholastic efforts have made her a fine faculty chairman for the scholarship program of the school. She has persuaded, cajoled, threatened, and many times just eagerly encouraged worthy, capable students to undertake higher learning. Her understanding of the wonders which lay ahead for a person who would follow this course of mental exploration was the driving force for her encouragement of those worthy of the endeavor. Through her guidance many who would not have otherwise achieved this goal were spurred on to earn the many fine scholarships available to them.

She is sincere and religiously loyal. Her friendship knows no discrimination. Association with her has left its brand on developing personalities and natures now and for years to come.

In recognition of her many fine qualities, we, the Seniors of February, 1955, dedicate our Shield to Miss Dorothy Madison — magnificent teacher, great scholar, profound friend.

Farewell to

MR. ROBERT PASCOE

Primarily, Mr. Robert Pascoe is "a man's man," brave, honest, and solid. His common sense and freedom from personal angularities make him a natural refuge for students and teachers who need advice and help. Too sane, himself, to create messes, he seems always to be called upon to clean up the messes of others. For eighteen years he did just this at Richmond High, first as coach, then as dean and finally as vice principal. His manner was very often as brisk and cleansing as the northwind. He left nobody in the dark as to where he stood. His character generated a moral force that kept Richmond High well-ordered and harmonious throughout the years of his service here.

Mr. Pacoe is also a man of many parts. He has been, to name only a few things, a great football player, a longshoreman, a police officer and a naval lieutenant. He hunts and fishes all over his native California. He gardens expertly. He reads Homer and Virgil. He is a "do-it-yourself" man, with great successes in carpentry, plumbing and paper-hanging. He sails the boat that he built with his own hands. He works on his impressive collection of stamps and coins. Some say that he can do anything, and they may be right.

But a mere list of Mr. Pascoe's capacities do not convey the man, his down-to-earth humor his ease of manner, and his rather leonine attitude of being monarch of all he surveys. One must know him to appreciate him.

We, the February Class of 1955, have known Mr. Pascoe well. Future classes will not have this privilege because he left our school in mid-semester to become principal of Roosevelt Junior High School. In view of this, we want to contribute our knowledge of him to the growing legend by biding him a fond farewell in our Shield. He helped us, incidentally, to pay off our Shield debt. Somehow this fact makes it seem wonderfully fitting that our book should carry this special tribute to him.

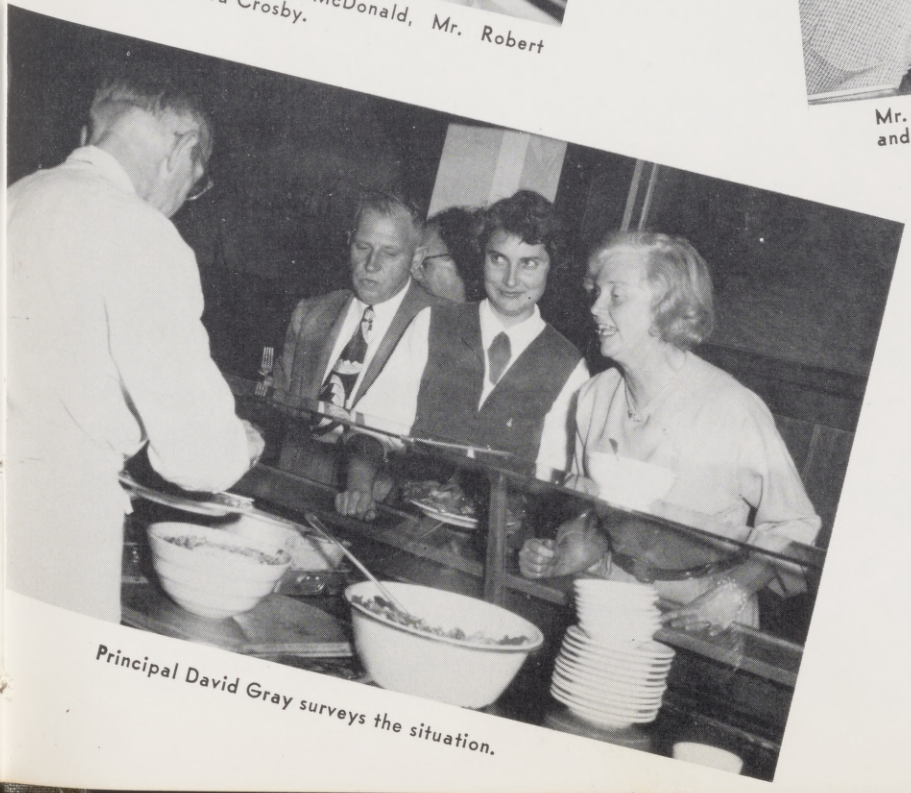
FACULTY DINNER

NOVEMBER 8, 1954

The raviolies taste fine to Mrs. Elvira Leam, Miss Melba O'Connell, Miss Louise Rogers, Miss Shirley Myers, Mr. Murray Hannah, and Mrs. Dexa Lugten.

Serving are Miss Helen McDonald, Mr. Robert Sikes and Miss Vera Crosby.

Mr. Richard Christensen helps himself while Mr. Sikes and Chef Bill Outman prepare the spaghetti.



Principal David Gray surveys the situation.

Assistant Chef Bob Pascoe.

In Memory of

HELEN BARNEY

The students and faculty of RUHS deeply feel the passing of Mrs. Helen Barney on December 16. For twenty years she gave her knowledge and energies unstintingly to help both students and faculty at Richmond High School. Those of us who came to her for training are grateful for the high standards she tried to teach us to incorporate in our work and lives. No detail was too small or too irksome for her notice, and her patience, selflessness, and understanding reached out to encompass everything she did for us.

Every part of her work bore a professional stamp, and she tried to pass this standard on to her students.

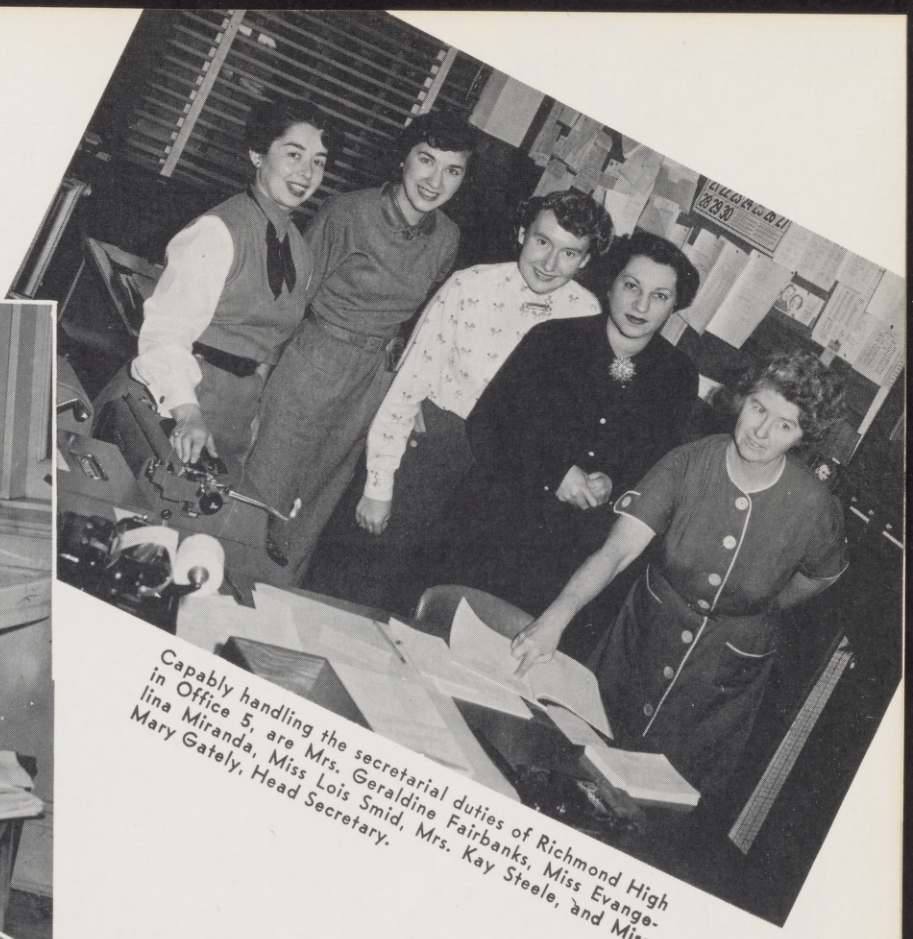
Her great ability for detail and fine organization was used in the scheduling and the implementing of the Student Association elections. It was due mainly to her efforts that our elections have run smoothly for so many years.

Numerous students who have entered the business world are better workers because of her influence and training. Having had her as their example, they knew toward what fine goals they were working, and how very important high standards of action, grooming, accomplishment, and pride of work were in the eyes of those with whom they would be associating.

It is with a profound sense of sorrow, as well as gratitude for a life of service, that the Seniors pay tribute to Mrs. Barney, fine teacher and friend.

SCHOOL PERSONEL

Efficiently coping with students' ills, both real and imaginary, is Mrs. Doris Maclean, School Nurse.



Capably handling the secretarial duties of Richmond High in Office 5, are Mrs. Geraldine Fairbanks, Miss Evangelina Miranda, Miss Lois Smid, Mrs. Kay Steele, and Miss Mary Gately, Head Secretary.

The tremendous job of making out the daily absence list is left in the able hands of Mrs. Mary Kessler, Mrs. Mildred Akin, Mrs. Ramona Broberg, and Mrs. Mileta Jester.

Miss Freda Hagerup, "keeper of the books", is sole distributor of the mountains of text literature consumed by RUHS.

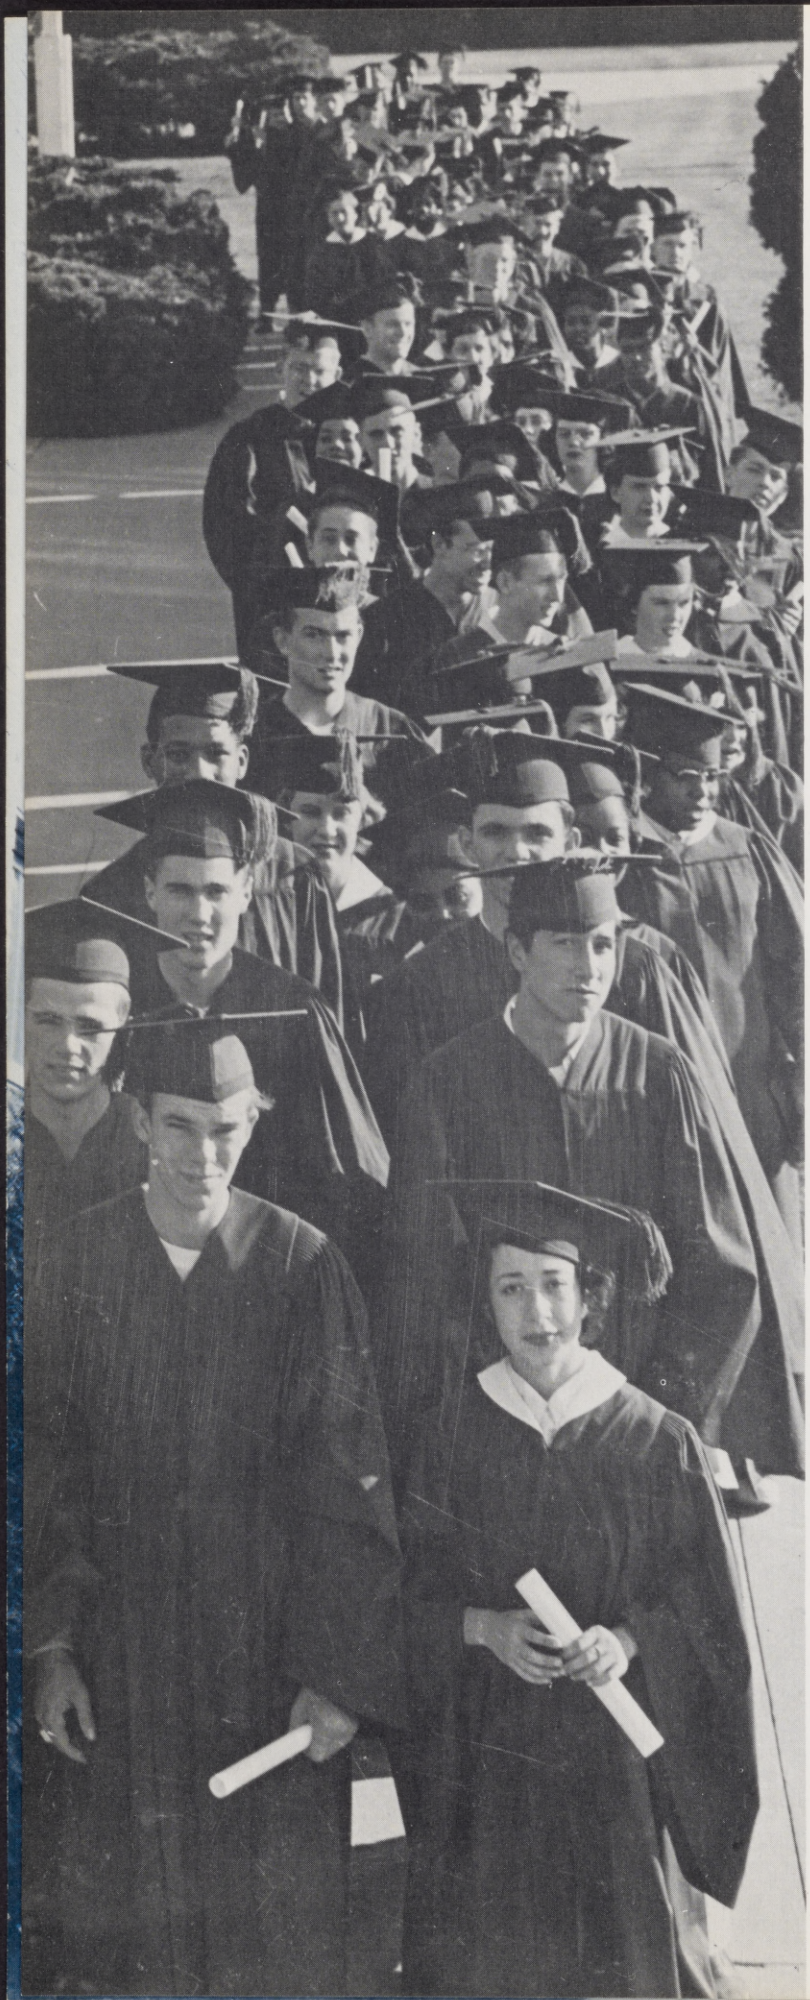
SENIORS

A moist rose bud blossoming before the dawn, the inevitable sense of superiority, yet insignificance; confidence, yet insecurity; one hundred and eighty-one students plotting a life, one hundred and eighty-one students building a world — these are the SENIORS.



OUR PRESENT IN RETROSPECT

The halls were crowded then, during our passage through the edifice of Richmond High. The halls were crowded then and so were our lives. We were busy living life to its fullest, and we were very young.

Think back and remember the teachers. We scoffed at them one day, feared them the next, but respected them always. Now, in the present time, some of us are teachers, and much has changed. The swift flight of time continues, to be relieved only in memory.

Before our school-day began, we gathered in clandestine-like groups and chattered in "Bop-talk", the jargon of the day. We "Bopsters" exercised our undisputed right to use such terms as "Zorch," "The Most," and "Cool." When these favorites became outmoded, we passed on to other gems, such as "Crazy," "Gone," and "Utterly Wild."

Think back and remember the senior activities, the festivities which reminded us that youth was slipping through our fingers, never to be recaptured again. The senior activities started with the Senior Play and ended with Commencement, the final act of twelve years of education, the final page in a twelve chapter book.

In many respects, our school years were among the happiest in our lives. Reflecting upon them, we evoke the whole strenuous era of the early 1950's. The movies, for example, were in Third Dimension, Cinemascope, Cinerama, and Stereophonic Sound — all brand new features in our early youth. Marilyn Monroe, Bob Wagner, Debbie Reynolds, Marlon Brando, Jeff Chandler were movie greats whom we undoubtedly made. "Shane," "Titanic," "Rear Window," "A Star is Born," were movies that we flocked to see and that held us enthralled. Our average movie consumption was one a week, a record which proved that, in our exalted opinion, movies were better than ever.

Television also dominated our high school years. "I Love Lucy" held top position, while "Dragnet" and Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" ran close seconds. Liberace was, of course, in a class by himself!

Our high school thoughts were not entirely carefree, however, because during our youth, the Atomic Age was born and brought with it the formidable threat of the hydrogen bomb and the anticipatory shudders of millions of Americans, the threatening atmosphere that suggested war.

All of these features — school, movies, television, the fear of the Atomic Age — wrap them together and you have our youth. But let us not ponder on times gone by, because the future is still ahead of us. There are mountains to be climbed, rivers to be crossed, regions to be explored, experiences to be lived, and a whole new world to conquer.

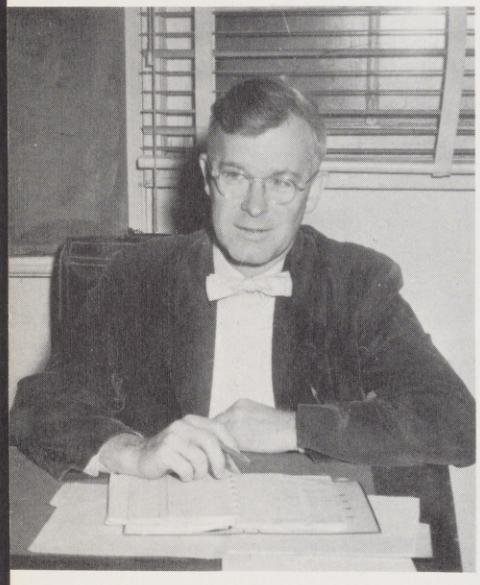
FOR SERVICES RENDERED

THE SHIELD STAFF TAKES THIS OPPORTUNITY TO THANK . . .

Mrs. Ruth Studarus for the time she spent with the Shield Art Editor and for her general co-operation during the production of this book.

Miss Nell Baggley for her advice and help with the writings contained in this book.

Miss Jennie Gardner for her time and trouble during the senior cap and gown fittings for the Shield picture "brainstorms".



Mr. Robert Hughes for taking numerous Shield pictures in the absence of the regular photographers.

Mrs. Alysse Lowe for allowing the Shield Editor to be absent from her class on Shield business and for her willingness to help when called upon.

Sheila Collins for giving up her study hall time to be assistant manager of the Shield funds and taking over in the absence of the regular manager.

Miss Frances Byrnes for the new background for advisory pictures, Mr. L. L. Tucker of Tucker Printing and Lithography for putting up with our mistakes and changes in layouts, and Mr. L. Casey of L. C. Smith Cover Company for the best, we think, cover the Shield has ever had.

Editors' Farewell

You have just finished the Shield, a yearbook which portrays a full semester, highlighting the events you'll want to remember; a yearbook which contains the very hearts of the fourteen people who created it.

This Shield expresses the entire concentration of its staff, the very hard work of its advisor, and the whole-hearted co-operation of Richmond High students and faculty. It was arranged and published with you, its readers, in mind, and it is the sincere wish of the Staff that this Shield meets the expectations you, unknowingly, have set.

The Shield Staff is more like a family, striving toward a single goal, than a class; and undoubtedly the Shield pressroom has witnessed all sorts of "family-squabbles." There were times when the arrival of a deadline made the explosion of the atomic bomb seem mild compared to the tumult of the pressroom. Since time and tempers were short, it was not unusual for copy sheets, layouts, and pictures to "fly" in the confusion. Staff members, clothes in wild disarray, were seen running through the halls, (at deadline time no one walked!) in search of someone, anyone, who could identify a sophomore in the back row of a group picture. Staff members were heard yelling (at deadline time no one talked quietly!) for a picture that the poor photographer claimed he hadn't even taken. Sweat began to pour, fingernails were bitten, and hair was pulled, sometimes right out! Then, suddenly, the storm was over, and an unnatural calm prevailed; the Shield was put to bed.

Yes, the Shield was put to bed, and our jobs were over, but the joy, the everlasting pleasure and satisfaction in its production are ours forever, not to be forgotten.

Our greatest hope is that you will continue to be edified, entertained, and carried back to the happy days which we have laboriously recorded for you in "Our Shield."

Signed,
Fran Faulkner
